Part III Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

Check if Schedule O contains a response to any question in this Part III Yes No

1 Briefly describe the organization's mission:

Conservancy promotes, improves, develops, facilitates, & defends Free, Libre, and Open Source Software (FLOSS) projects, providing a non-profit home & infrastructure for its projects. Conservancy's projects include some of the world's most widely used software, such as: educational software for schools, integrated library service systems, & embedded software found in most electronic devices.

2 Did the organization undertake any significant program services during the year which were not listed on the prior Form 990 or 990-EZ? Yes No

If "Yes," describe these new services on Schedule O.

3 Did the organization cease conducting, or make significant changes in how it conducts, any program services? Yes No

If "Yes," describe these changes on Schedule O.

4 Describe the exempt purpose achievements for each of the organization's three largest program services by expenses. Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations and section 4947(a)(1) trusts are required to report the amount of grants and allocations to others, the total expenses, and revenue, if any, for each program service reported.

4a (Code:) (Expenses $ 278,771 including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Facilitating FLOSS conferences. During the tax year of 2010, Conservancy planned, organized and ran one conference each for its Boost and Wine projects, and two conferences for its jQuery project. These conferences allow the projects to speak about their work to the general public, teach the general public how to use and improve their software, and generally promote the projects. Additionally, these conferences provide an opportunity for software developers to meet and rapidly work closely together to make improvements to the software, and release those improvements immediately to the general public.

Finally, Conservancy also sent various project volunteers and staff to third-party conferences in related areas. These volunteers and staff spoke about the work of Conservancy and the work of its projects, answered questions from the public, and advised projects and other tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organizations that have goals similar to Conservancy's.

4b (Code:) (Expenses $ 216,429 including grants of $) (Revenue $)

FLOSS development and mentoring of young software developers. During the tax year of 2010, Conservancy engaged nine different software developers as independent contractors to improve the software in its Mercurial, jQuery, Sugar Labs, and Twisted projects. This work generated many thousands of new lines of software code. The code was released freely to the public under copyright licenses that encourage the general public to use, share & modify the software.

These contractors also worked diligently with the project communities to coordinate volunteer software developers to contribute code of their own to the projects.

Finally, in addition to these nine contracts, 33 other developers mentored student software developers during a summer participation program. These developers helped the students get involved with FLOSS developments and contribute new code to the projects, which was also made available to the public, as described above.

4c (Code:) (Expenses $ 89,326 including grants of $) (Revenue $)

Many of Conservancy's projects are available under "copyleft" licenses, such as the GNU General Public License (GPL). "Copyleft" licenses are copyright licenses which allow everyone to freely share, copy, modify, and install modified versions of the software, but "copyleft" licenses additionally require that everyone who receives the software has an equal right to engage in those activities.

Conservancy identifies situations where distributors fail to meet those requirements. Conservancy then enforces the copyright license, thereby requiring these distributors to provide the same rights to copy, share, modify and install modified versions of the software to all those who received the software distribution, just as those distributors had initially received those rights.

Through this process, Conservancy ensures that the general public has equal rights to use, improve and study the software, and to experiment with their own modifications to the software.

Rarely, in particularly egregious cases of GPL violation, Conservancy does seek remedy in the courts through copyright litigation.

The primary goal of all these copyright enforcement activities is always to ensure that all who receive copies of copylefted software (or modified versions thereof) can freely engage in copying, modifying, improving and installing modified versions of the software.

4d Other program services. (Describe in Schedule O.)

Additionally, Conservancy performed other essential non-profit services for FLOSS projects. These include, but are not necessarily limited to: Internet hosting & bandwidth costs, computer equipment and hardware to facilitate software development, advising FLOSS projects on how to make use of non-profit resources and other incidental expenses incurred by FLOSS projects.

FORM 990, PART V, Line 7(a):

FORM 990, PART VI, LINE 11B - Form 990 Review Process:

Before Conservancy files a 990, a final draft is submitted to the Board of Directors for review. The Directors then review and discuss it at the next Board meeting. Conservancy requires its Board to vote to approve the 990 before it is filed. The vote is conducted under the usual rules in the organization's by-laws regarding Board actions.

FORM 990, PART VI, LINE 15a - Compensation Review & Approval Process for CEO, Executive Director or Top Management:

In September 2010, prior to Kuhn's hire in January 2011 as Executive Director, Kuhn presented to Conservancy's Board a compensation package proposal. Kuhn left the meeting while the Board reviewed, discussed, considered, and voted to approve Kuhn's compensation package. Part of Kuhn's presentation included a spreadsheet which calculates the average CEO/Executive Director salaries at 35 different non-profit organizations in related fields. The Board set Kuhn's salary at well below that average. The spreadsheet is publicly available at:
